

New snow avalanches

Date

Tue, 02/04/2025 - 11:45

Activity

Skiing

Toured up around fairy lake today, winds were ripping all day. Saw several d1 soft slabs in upper elevation terrain, many of them running quite far. We opted ski a lower elevation zone and were surprised to find a soft slab (d1/r1) that ran on an east facing slope at about 7500' and about 500-600 ft below the ridge line on a slope just over 30 degrees.

Region

Bridger Range

Observer Name

Jay Alford